

Storefront Articulation Criteria

The design of the common mall area has been developed to direct the visual focus of the customer to the identity of the merchant and merchandise presentation. The emphasis of this design intent is to enhance the distinctive and unique character of each tenant.

The storefront articulation or “pop-out” zone has been established to provide for the dimensional expression of each tenant’s storefront design. This permits the incorporation of projected entry statements, display windows, pediment treatments and signage backgrounds, as well as the use of dimensional architectural elements such as columns and capitols, cornice and soffit treatments.

As the design emphasis is focused to the tenant storefronts, it is paramount that each tenant storefront be dimensionally articulated within the permissible area shown.
